Indigenous people who vote are reminding Canada of the nation-to-nation relationships that continue to exist and to bring change from within the very structure that has been used to erase them.

A vote for Canada or Indigenous Nationhood? The complexities of First Nations, Métis and Inuit participation in Canadian politics

Militias made up of men protecting their towns and colonies helped to defeat the bigger and better organized british military. A couple of years later, when the founding fathers crafted the ...

What's the deal with the Second Amendment?

The debate over the right to bear arms is about as old as America itself and grammar could be the key to understanding the Second amendment of the constitution is a doozy of a sentence.
